Hey Claude, I don't want to launch my 5 coded app when we haven't checked everything yet. So, audit the whole app from start to finish. Check the login, signups, payments, forms, database, API calls, permissions, mobile responsiveness, and all the important user flow.

Look for the broken links, missing pages, error states, loading issues, and features that don't work properly. Check the security, exposed API keys, database rules, and if there's sensitive data that can be seen by wrong users. Then test what will happen if the internet is slow, has invalid input, or has multiple users at the same time.

List all the critical issues that need to be fixed before launch. Don't say that it's ready if there's still a problem. And lastly, make no mistakes.
